Belmont Abbey College and the Institute of World Politics Announce Partnership Geared Towards International Affairs Education

BELMONT, N.C. - (June 29, 2022) Belmont Abbey College and the Institute of World Politics (IWP) announce a partnership in international affairs education. Earlier this week, the two parties signed a Memorandum of Understanding that will benefit students pursuing an education in international affairs and politics. The establishment of this new partnership pairs two institutes focused on giving students the skills necessary to succeed in the world of politics, statecraft, and national security affairs.

The partnership will provide Belmont Abbey students an exceptional next step towards a career in international affairs. Dr. David Williams, Vice Provost for Academic Affairs at Belmont Abbey, believes this new opportunity further enhances the mission of the Abbey. Our mission hopes for our students to be ‘a blessing for themselves and others,’ and those called to careers in international affairs will find that developing their skills at IWP will build on what they’ve received at BAC in a host of ways,” he says.

Once accepted into IWP’s onsite M.A. program, ten Belmont Abbey students will receive a $2,200 scholarship each semester and are eligible for additional IWP merit-based scholarships and tuition discounts. Additionally, students from Belmont Abbey will receive early acceptance assurance into the online M.A. program and priority consideration for IWP’s internship program, with the opportunity to visit the Institute prior on a yearly basis. In turn, Belmont Abbey will share IWP’s mission with students and raise awareness of IWP’s programs on campus.

This agreement is equally beneficial to IWP as they seek to find students with strong foundations of ethics and morality. “IWP and Belmont have a mutual commitment to the defense of truth, justice, and the Western moral tradition, and our efforts are greatly strengthened by our new partnership, ” says Mr. Tim Stebbins, IWP Vice President of Graduate Recruitment. “This endeavor will streamline our central mission of educating the next generation of leadership in intelligence, diplomacy, and national security. We very much look forward to welcoming Belmont Abbey alumni through our doors and watching them embark on fascinating careers.”
