Belmont, N.C. (September 29, 2023) – Belmont Abbey College announces that EduMed.org recognizes the college as one of today's best schools for online healthcare degree programs. The college's Master of Healthcare Administration (MHA) online program earned top honors for its overall quality, affordability, and commitment to student success.

Designed for working professionals who want to advance their healthcare careers, students can complete the Belmont Abbey College MHA program entirely online, with no on-campus requirements. Students have access to a range of support services, including academic advising, career counseling, and technical support. In addition, all faculty receive Quality Matters certification, a gold standard for instructors to demonstrate their mastery of online teaching and learning.

Dr. Gwyndolan Swain, Founding Program Director and Professor of the MHA program at Belmont Abbey College, shares, "We are thrilled to offer a 100% online program that combines academic rigor with practical skills and real-world experience. Our graduates are well-prepared to take on leadership roles in healthcare organizations and positively impact their communities."

EduMed.org, a leading online resource for healthcare education, evaluated hundreds of schools offering online healthcare degree programs. The rankings were based on factors such as program quality, affordability, and student support services.

"Our rankings feature the programs giving future nurses and allied health professionals the best chance for success, from day one in the classroom to day one on the job," said Wes Harris, outreach coordinator for EduMed.org. "This starts with having a price tag that students can afford, as well as providing academic counseling, career placement services, and other key resources and support that help students graduate and get hired."
